Active Alumni

THE University resounds with activity. The 1929-30 school year is under good headway. Classes, organizations and athletics are whirling and buzzing with work and more work. But what about our alumni?

The loyal activity of individuals and certain clubs is recognized with keen enjoyment and encouragement. But we wonder at the lack of active interest in so many quarters. Going through the alumni list, we are ashamed to see the number of inactive groups scattered about the country. To a great extent the future growth and welfare of the University depends upon its alumni. Are you going to be of any assistance to the University of Dayton this year? Acting alone, it will be a difficult task to offer material help, but, acting as a member of an organized active club, you can render invaluable assistance. Certainly there are other local alumni who are ready and anxious to help in the organization of a U of D alumni club. The Alumni Office is at your service and always willing to assist you in any possible manner.

Another test of your loyalty is the manner in which you support the varied programs of the University. Your support of these U of D affairs, such as its athletic program, is needed and appreciated. Boost, don't knock, the University of Dayton's progress. Decide upon constructive thought and effort. Study your old school. Find out just how much or just how little you know about U of D and then criticize constructively. The University of Dayton looks to you for whole-hearted support — so show them that you are loyal; that you are vitally interested; and that you are worthy of their confidence.

Alumni Salesmanship

THERE has been a controversy in the Dayton newspapers concerning the failure of the people of Dayton to turn out in large numbers for the U of D games played in the stadium. Dayton seemingly appears as a poor sport city, as far as attendance at football games and other athletic contests is concerned. Judging from the Boston College Home-Coming game in the U of D stadium on October 19, it is more beneficial for the University of Dayton to schedule games away from Dayton. Could it be, however, that Dayton has been, as a city, unjustly judged in that connection? Possibly the population of Dayton is just about as much interested in athletics and attend the U of D games in as large numbers as they do in other cities. But the alumni in the city of Dayton and vicinity — have they been faithfully boosting the University? Have they been consistently talking U of D to the community? And have they been regularly attending the home games?

It may be logically concluded, we believe, that the alumni in Dayton as well as in the territory immediately surrounding Dayton, do attend the home games, especially the important games, with some regularity. But they surely have not carried out their obligation to Alma Mater in interesting others in the U of D games. The alumni apparently have not, as is their duty, acted as representatives for their old school. If they had, U of D would certainly have no trouble in packing the stadium for such an attraction as Boston College, on a beautiful day and with no other games in the city. It is our belief that our athletic progress in the future is largely dependent upon a display of loyal interest and active salesmanship on the part of the alumni. If U of D is to make the same rapid progress in its athletics as it is making in all other respects, the alumni must manifest a great degree of loyalty by at all times thinking and talking U of D.

A Service

COUNTLESS high school seniors are now making plans for entering some university or college next September. Why not persuade them to enter your Alma Mater, the University of Dayton?

Every year numerous high school graduates leave your community to enter various universities and colleges. For the most part their choice is made because some one from another school has been in touch with them and has sung the praises of his alma mater.

Talk to these high school seniors and tell them what U of D offers educationally, socially and athletically. As alumni of the University of Dayton let this be another means of serving your Alma Mater.

Tuition

THOUGH tuition is only one of several items a student must meet when he enters college, it is a charge that varies in various institutions—from $180 at the University of Dayton up to $450 at Princeton. Amherst charges $300; Yale, Cornell, and Brown, $350; and the following charge $400: Harvard, Dartmouth, Williams, Wesleyan, Johns Hopkins, Lafayette, Lehigh, Bryn Mawr, Smith, Vassar, Wellesley, Swathmore, and others.

College Graduate Mortality

THERE has always circulated, especially among non-college men, the barest suspicion that college men do not live very long. They usually follow sedentary occupations, and disease and death in the mind of the muscle-bound is associated with the latter. The American Student Health Association comes forth with the report, however, which not only frustrates that assumption but turns the tables. The vital history of 40,000 graduates from eight colleges, 1870 to 1905, of 5,000 athletes of ten colleges, and 6,500 honor men from six colleges from graduation until 1925 was collated. The college graduate mortality was 8.8 below the national average, taking the latter as 100.

AERO COURSE IS OFFERED A course in elements of Aerodynamics and Airplane Design was introduced this year. This course, offered on Tuesday and Friday evenings, is conducted by Dr. Giovanni P. Casiragbi, doctor of mechanical engineering and doctor of naval architecture. There are at present twenty-eight students enrolled in the course.

TEST FRESHMAN INTELLIGENCE According to the new ruling the registration of a freshman is not complete until an intelligence test is taken. This is the first year that such a test is obligatory. In prior years the student could elect taking the test if he so desired. The test, conducted by Rev. J. V. Trunk, S.M., D.D., was composed of a total of 395 questions, divided into five groups. These five groups are: understanding, discrimination, analogies, number series, and arithmetic. Each test is timed, the entire 395 questions to be answered in ninety-three minutes.

MIGRATION DAY SUCCESS If any of the old grads remember how Dayton and St. Xavier did things up in the days of their feudal rivalry, they should have witnessed the fine outlay which the two schools put on November 9 in the renewal on the gridiron of athletic relations between the two schools. A special train took the Dayton rooters to the Queen City and this was filled to capacity. Hundreds of fans also made the trip by auto.

The Sinton was the headquarters for Dayton in Cincinnati and a wonderful banquet was held in the evening followed by the dance. The banquet and dance was well attended by U of D and St. Xavier alumni. One of the largest crowds ever to be at Corcoran Field was present for the struggle.

ROTC CHANGE For the first time in the history of the ROTC at the University, the custom of having a cadet major is not in rule this year. This is due to the small enrollment in the military drills. There are four cadet captains, however — Captains Bowman, Decker, Washington, and Louis Cox, the latter being the staff captain. About two hundred are enrolled in the ROTC, the army staff including Colonel B. F. Ristine, Captain George E. Abrams, Captain Alfred E. Dedicke, Sergeant Derwood C. Blackburn and Sergeant J. F. Griley.

DR. BECK SPEAKS In October Dr. William A. Beck, S.M., spoke before the discussion group of the Unitarian Church, Dayton, Ohio. His subject was "The Nature of the Physical World." This was the fifth of a series of studies in an effort to build a basis for social and religious thinking. It is non-sectarian.

COMMERCE CLUB Professor E. B. O'Leary of the Department of Commerce and Finance has announced that he is planning no less than two banquet programs for the year, the first of which will be held some time in December. Mr. O'Leary announced that he is also planning many lecture schedules for school discussion at which meetings prominent men of business from Dayton will speak on various subjects.

I. R. C. ACTIVITY Rev. Charles V. Preisinger, S.M., of the History Department announces that many things are in store for the International Relations Club this year, although the group will not be actively organized until after the football season in December. Students must maintain an average of ninety per cent in history to be eligible for the Club.

Alumni of Chattanooga Give Royal Reception to Flyers

The University of Dayton Flyers are still speaking of the remarkable reception given them by the handful of U of D alumni in Chattanooga after the contest with Oglethorpe at Atlanta.

Feeling pretty blue after losing a game that was apparently in the bag, the Flyers arrived in Chattanooga late Saturday night, October 26. The morale was pretty low, but it remained for the loyal old grads to bring it up again.

The Flyers were met at the train by the Chattanooga grads and taken to the Hotel Patten. Sunday afternoon the "old boys" took the team on an eye-filling sight-seeing tour, which will always be a memorable event. Such beautiful terrain and historical spots as Lookout Mountain, Signal Mountain, Fort Oglethorpe, Chickamauga Park, and Missionary Ridge were visited on the tour. The trip lasted four hours and then the party repaired to the beautiful Chattanooga Country Club, where the day was climaxed by an enjoyable banquet and entertainment.

Among the guests invited to attend the banquet was Harold Drew, the genial coach of the University of Chattanooga, who spoke a few words of cheer to the boys. Other speakers were "Joe" Mahoney, toastmaster; Frank Herron; Pat Wilcox; Harry Baujan; and Captain Gil Gowan.

The Flyers entrained for Dayton late Sunday night with the realization that the alumni are always with them, win or lose. As Joe Mahoney wrote—

"Tell them not to be discouraged in regard to the Oglethorpe defeat. As one philosopher figured it out, Oglethorpe beat Georgia; Georgia beat Yale; Yale beat the Army, and the Army won the war. If Dayton had beaten Oglethorpe they would have been world's champions—something we cannot expect from a bunch of crawling sophomores!"

The University and the Alumni Association are indeed deeply grateful to the Chattanooga alumni for such a remarkable display of loyalty and devotion, and particularly to Joe Mahoney, E. C. Mahoney, O. J. Hubbuch, J. B. Crimmins, Norbert Monning, H. J. Haile, J. E. Carroll, Thomas Hackett, V. S. Brown, P. J. Wilcox, Frank Herron, Paul Stagmaier, and William C. Casey.

The Count Now Stands Three Won — Three Lost

BY downing Transylvania in a hard-fought contest to the tune of 12-6 the Flyers have brought their standing to an even count. Three won and three lost — with St. Xavier, Quantico Marines and Wittenberg remaining to be taken care of.

After defeating Wilmington by a 7-0 count the Flyers met the strong Boston College eleven, which as yet has not met defeat since 1927. The Flyers were determined to upset the old dope bucket by delivering a win, but a heavy Boston eleven with as hard a driving backfield as ever sported its wares on the stadium greensward was not to be denied. Consequently the Flyers had to accept the short end of a 23-7 score. True, Boston's margin was decisive enough, but it does not throw the correct slant on a game that was really a battle royal until the latter part of the last quarter. Boston did not rip Dayton's line to shreds nor race helter-skelter around the Flyers' wings. The winning margin of the invaders was swelled principally because its aerial offense clicked in two scoring spots to bring touchdowns. In the words of Joe McKenney, Boston coach: "Dayton has a great forward passing attack and a crackerjack defensive line. But we got the breaks at the opportune moments and the old breaks are what decide football games these days."

Smarting under this defeat the U of D Flyers journeyed to Atlanta, Georgia, to meet the strong Oglethorpe eleven, conquerors of Georgia. Under a brilliant southern sun and helping to dedicate a beautiful new stadium, the Flyers were set to conquer the south. But the "Stormy Petrels" just could not see it that way. The half ended 12-0 in Dayton's favor. With the game seemingly in the bag the Flyers came back in the second half showing the same old fight and determination, but victory was not to be theirs. The boys gave their best but their best was not good enough to beat an inspired Oglethorpe eleven that wouldn't admit defeat.

No credit should be taken away from the "Stormy Petrels," who really played a great game, but it must be said in justice to the Flyers that the officials were extremely unfair in their decisions. Even the Atlanta scribes admitted that the Flyers were robbed on several occasions. But that's neither here nor there. The Flyers lost—lost to a fine club by a 20-12 count.

Returning home the Flyers showed renewed fight in the defeat of Transylvania, and the boys now face quite a job in their effort to finish the schedule with three more wins.

Fitzpatrick Resigns; Belanich Succeeds as Assistant Coach

THE appointment of Frank "Box Car Bill" Belanich as Assistant Football Coach came as welcome news to the student body and alumni. In giving Bill the post left vacant when George M. Fitzpatrick, who plans to go into business, resigned unexpectedly the Athletic Board could not have chosen another man who has followed U of D athletics more closely. Prior to his appointment Belanich was coaching the freshman squad with great success.

The sudden resignation on October 28 of Fitzpatrick, as assistant football coach and head basketball coach, effective at once, came as a surprise to the followers of U of D athletics. While it is unfortunate that Fitz, who for the past three years has been coaching at U of D, had to choose such an inopportune time to leave, still U of D is very fortunate that it has a Bill Belanich to step into the breach at once.

A giant when he was playing tackle for the Flyers, Bill Belanich was a tower of strength on the Dayton line. Bill, a born analyst on the gridiron, was never taken out of a play. Like many a powerful man, Belanich is possessed of surprising gentleness. He speaks slowly and methodically, yet forcefully. When he "tells" the squad it remains "told."

Box Car Bill was schooled in Baujan's methods and knows the temperament of the U of D boys. Being just enough of a chum and enough of a teacher to get the best there is out of the boys, Belanich should prove to be a great assistant to Harry Baujan.

— U. D. —

Thanksgiving Day turkey won't be the only savory dish offered to Dayton people. A game between University of Dayton and Wittenberg College will be on the holiday menu and in some respects will surpass a turkey dinner.

Only on one or two occasions has the local stadium been filled to capacity since its erection. However, every nook and corner is expected to be filled when the Flyers tackle the Lutherans. Wittenberg has one of the strongest elevens in the state and a merry battle is expected to ensue.

In 1927 the Baujanites inflicted a 7 to 3 loss on the Lutherans and the Springfield school has not forgotten that setback. Whether they will be able to avenge that defeat remains to be seen for in such games a winner is hard to pick.

The Dayton forward wall will be tested to its utmost when such players as Captain Edwards, center, Trubey and Harre, tackles, and Singer, guard, oppose them. These four have been the main threats of the Wittenberg line, and whether the Flyer defense will be able to stop them will be interesting to watch. Edwards also has seen duty in the backfield this season.

— U. D. —

The game with the Quantico Marines on November 16 will probably be one of those contests where a touchdown looks like a million.

Deaths

Friends are bereaving the sudden death of JOSEPH C. MURPHY of the Class of '22, which occurred on October 31, 1929. Mr. Murphy died suddenly from a heart attack while busily engaged at his desk.

He was a patent chemist, engaged in chemical work in connection with patent situations, and was associated with the firm of Hoguet & Neary of 43 Exchange Place, New York City.

Mr. Murphy graduated from the Chemical Engineering Department of the University in 1922. He received his Master's degree in 1924, and earned the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in 1927. He had been doing splendid work in his business connections and was highly esteemed by his associates. His untimely death cut short a bright future.

The loss of Mr. Murphy is keenly felt, as he was looked upon as an exemplary alumnus, who was at all times devoted and loyal to the University of Dayton.

Flyers in the News

One of the principal speakers on the program of the Eighth Annual Asphalt Paving Conference was Mark R. Thompson, '20, engineer in charge of bituminous pavements, Board of Public Service, St. Louis, Missouri. The conference this year was held at West Baden Springs Hotel, West Baden, Indiana, under the auspices of the Asphalt Association and the Association of Asphalt Paving Technologists. "Mark" delivered his address at the final session of the conference on Thursday, October 31.

His subject was "Experimental Runway Construction on the Lambert—St. Louis Municipal Airport," which he illustrated with moving pictures.

News is received of the inseparables, "Ned" Grimes, '04, and "Matt" Flanagan, '00, from Europe. Ned and Matt are traveling through France, England and Germany on an extensive business trip. Don't be a bit surprised to see the enrollment of foreign students at U of D increased one hundred per cent next year due to the salesmanship of these two ever loyal old grads.

Here is how Rev. Gerald W. E. Dunne, '16, is looked upon. The following is an article taken from The Centric, a student publication of the Central Catholic High School, Toledo, Ohio:

"A priest, a poet, a great teacher, and the friend of every boy at Central—Rev. Gerald W. E. Dunne, head of the mechanical drawing department. He not only knows his subject, he knows how to teach it. Doctor Dunne never pushes his students, yet always seems to get good results.

"Doctor Dunne is very interesting in literature—in fact his hobby is poetry. He received his degree of Doctor of Literature at the University of Dayton during the past summer. The surveying of the church property of the diocese is under his supervision.

"Through all this work he remains a true friend, and it is through his influence and advice that many a bashful boy is molded into a good Catholic citizen."

Something of the spirit of the Viking still animates American youth it was proved in the adventures of Lee Scheid, '28, who has returned after an engineering expedition into Central America.

Scheid hails from the Guanchia camp in the jungles of Spanish Honduras where engineers are waging a heroic fight against antiquity, wilderness, swamps and fever in an effort to bring the luscious fruits of the semi-tropics to the world's breakfast table.

The Dayton youth passed four months in the southern republic and in that time received as many commissions or assignments as many other engineers would see in years. Scheid joined five other engineers there, all working out of the Guanchia camp for the Tela railroad, a subsidiary of the United Fruit Co. A houseboy, a meal boy and a cook, all natives, were assigned to administer to their wants and four native laborers or "mozos" were assigned to each engineer.

The camp or farm on which he worked was one of forty-five operated by that company and the smallest of the lot. It contained only 10,000 acres.

A young engineer looking for postgraduate work and varied experience in his profession can find all that he wants in Spanish Honduras, Scheid pointed out. For there are all kinds of drainage and irrigation jobs, bridge-building, power-plant erection, canal constructions, and other forms of work to be done before that country reaches the maximum in fruit production that is expected of it.

One of the fascinating sights Scheid saw in the southern republic was the Lancitia snake farm, operated under the patronage of the United Fruit Co. by Harvard University specialists.

He brought back some splendid pictures depicting the work done at that institution in extracting poison from reptiles for use as antidotes. These research workers comb the jungles for snakes for use in their experiments.

Scheid found the trip immensely profitable—in fact the best possible kind of postgraduate work one could image.

Dayton U D Engineers' Club

The U of D Engineers' Club of Dayton held their first dinner meeting of the season at the Knights of Columbus on Thursday, October 10, with a large number in attendance. New members admitted to the club at this time were Fred Berner, '27, Michael Moran, '29, and Joseph Park, '29. A motion was passed to make every other meeting a dinner meeting this year.

John Russell, '25, gave an interesting talk on "Your Money's Worth." He told of the adulteration, misrepresentation and fraudulent schemes used by some manufacturers to sell their products. John Retter, '27, spoke on "Contracts." He discussed this from both the engineering and legal standpoints.

To give a little more history of this club and to show its activity and scope with the hope that similar clubs will be organized in other cities, a resume of some of the talks given in the past few years is presented:

- Elmer Steger—"Recent Electrical Developments"
- Emil Kessler—"Varnish"

BONFIRE RALLY One of the largest bonfires ever to be made for any pep rally previous to a Home-Coming game was held on Friday evening October 18 on one of the practice fields on the upper campus of the University. Many prominent speakers graced the program and included Coaches Baujan and Fitzpatrick, Pat Wilcox of the '28 team, Martin Kuntz, '12, Charles Pfarrer, '27, and several others. A splendid program greeted the alumni on Home-Coming Day and even though the Flyers lost a heart-breaking game the spirit of the day was aptly climaxed by the mammoth Home-Coming Dance that night.

DEBATERS WORKING At the same time that the I. R. C. plans are in the making, Dr. Lawrence Boll, S.M., announces that three meetings have already been held for the members of the debating team, whose members are working diligently. Constitution work is now taking the attention of the members of the Club, which includes Gabel, Dwyer, Levit, Snyder, Redman, and McBride. The schedule of debates is about completed, although it is not ready to be announced as yet.

CAMPUS ROADS Road improvements on the University campus have been under way for the past month. One of the most noted improvements is the installation of concrete gutters on L Street. These gutters will lead from Alberta Street to the University Chapel and thence southward to the Stadium. Construction work was done by the Finke Engineering Co., while road improvements are also in progress.

DIRECTOR OF DRAMATICS Mr. Joseph J. Abel, '93, for years connected with dramatics at the University, was appointed as director of dramatic plays on November 2, with his duties also to include minor work at Chaminade High School. Mr. Abel plans to produce three plays in the course of the school term.

Alphonse J. Pater, '04, retained the office of Municipal Judge at Hamilton, Ohio, by defeating Oscar R. Leiser, 7089 to 4762. Congratulations, Judge!

Dr. W. Richard Hochwalt, '25, of 479 Grand Avenue, Dayton, Ohio, graduate of the University of Dayton Pre-Medical Department in 1923, entered on October 20 the Harvard Post-Graduate School at the Massachusetts General Hospital and Children's Hospital, Cambridge, Massachusetts. Dr. Hochwalt, who received his degree of Doctor of Medicine at Ohio State University, is exceptionally privileged in receiving the appointment, as no vacancy exists in the school until 1932. Dr. Hochwalt has been a general practitioner in Dayton since his graduation from medical college in 1927. He will be gone for two years and on his return will specialize in orthopedic surgery.

Flyers then—old grads now. Here is Sam Hipa, '28, tearing off for a score.

University of Dayton News

E. W. HOWE in the Atchison Globe once said that news was anything that made a woman say "For Heaven's Sake!" Will Irwin defined it as anything out of the ordinary. James W. Barrett, city editor of the New York World, believes it to be an entirely pragmatic matter and that news today, tomorrow or next year may be at least partly different in kind from what it is now. Gerald W. Johnson of the Baltimore Sun in his little book called "What Is News" concludes somewhat desperately that news is anything the papers print.

We need not conclude so desperately, however, as to what is news, if we define it as "anything that people want to know about." This definition covers a multitude of needs and is entirely flexible, so flexible indeed that it covers a point which we want to stress in this little reminder from the News Service Bureau of the University of Dayton.

Every loyal alumnus of the University is anxious to read news about the University of Dayton. Whether or not your local paper carries University of Dayton news depends entirely upon you. If you tell your city editor that you want to know about the University of Dayton and the Flyers, he is going to print that information, for it at once becomes NEWS and he is anxious to have news.

This is an invitation for you to drop into your local newspaper office, no matter where it is, and tell the editor that there are people in your city or town who want to know about the University of Dayton and its activities. Your editor will at once be on the lookout for dope when it comes over the Associated Press, the International News Service or the United Press wires.

You can do more in one visit than the News Service Bureau could do in years. If Paducah, Ky., or Bridgeport, Conn., or any other newspaper is not printing University of Dayton news, drop in and tell them about it. If they are receiving the material from our News Service Bureau and not using it, they will do so in the future. If they are not receiving anything, they will ask us for the news in short order. Such a plan makes for an efficiently operated Bureau. May we expect your whole-hearted co-operation in this respect in the future? And may we expect your constructive criticisms too as to how to maintain a better News Service Bureau? Give the plan a trial and watch the fine results!—Joe Keller, Director News Service Bureau.
